

Dr Mutasim Nour

I joined the School of Engineering and Physical Sciences at Heriot-Watt University, Dubai Campus, in 2010 and currently hold the position of Associate Professor of Electrical Engineering. In addition, I am the Associate Director of External Relations in EPS-Dubai and have been a Senate member since 2016. In addition, I am currently a member on both the University Studies Committee and Research Degree Committee. Prior to joining HWU, I worked as an Associate Professor in the Department of Electrical Engineering at the University of Nottingham, Malaysia, for nine years, where I led the Electrical Engineering Strand and served on several committees at the School and University levels.

Should I be reselected, the experience I have in academia, which spans over 18 years in teaching, administration and research, will allow me to contribute effectively to the University Senate. My main reason to join the Senate is to work on enhancing the work environment and transparency in the University. Making a better balance between teaching, research and services will be one of my main priorities.
